At the start of February we opened a forum for general discussion. The idea is that it is to become a free place for auto enthusiasts to post their views and comments. Its also a good place to get advise from other like minded individuals.

Have you ever thought, "How do I do this with my car?" or "What the heck does that do?" why not post those kinds of questions on our forum and get the answers that you need, you can also ask us questions for us to answer, this allows others in the future to read your question and our response and hopefully get the answers they seek.

Membership on our site is, of course, free. And its very simple to register. You can also rest assured that your details are encrypted in our database, we can't even access your passwords. If you forget your password the computer will issue a new one for you, this ensures no unauthorized access to your account.

Are you looking to sell your car, or do you want a hard to find car part? Post it in our classifieds and get exposure for free.
